

The Dinosaur Herd — Quetzalcoatlus

Quetzalcoatlus

The largest flying predator, the Quetzalcoatlus can reach top flying speeds of 80 mph and initial speeds of over 30 mph, making this huge dinosaur deceptively mobile. Like other flying dinosaurs, the Quetzalcoatlus will bring food to their nests to feed their young, but unlike smaller flying dinosaurs, Quetzalcoatlus hunt on the ground on all fours, meaning they have to compete with other land based predators, as such, they are far tougher and will attack any other predators who would stand between them and their prey.
